Guttierraz ever had that weapon in his possession:

His Lordship then summed up. He asked the jury to dismiss from their minds everything they had heard or read about the case vaile i had been pending and also the evidence as to the wounds inflicted on the woman, and telonfine themselves entirely to the charge against the prisoner of murdering the man Guttierres. He then read a defluition of the crime of murder "from "Russell on Crime," and said the word malice did not mean any precise ill-will, bu a generally wicked, deprayed, and evil spirit. Having read through the evidence his Lordship eaid the prisoner had had the benefit of a very able defence, and Mr. Hayllar, without atually setting up insanity, set up provocation, and no doubt the law under certain circumstances had allowed provocation to be an excuse formurder and to reduce the crime to manslaughter, in consideration of human infirmity, but it depended very much upon the nature of the weapon used if they found that this weapon was used with the intention of causing death, that would be express malice, and no amount of promeation would be sufficient to reduce the charge to manslaughter so far as the inry was concorned. On this point his Lordship read several decided cases, and went on to say that there was. so far as the evidence went, no proof of provocation having been given, except the finding o Guttierrez in the house. The woman Lackhardt belonged to a class on whose evidence they could not, under ordinary circumstances, place much reliance, but they must remember that in the present instance she had given her widence under peculiarly solemn circumstances, after narrow escape from death, and that there was an apparent absence of malice in the way is which she had made her statement. They had heard the able defence of Mr. Hayllar; the learned connsel had placed everything before them that could be suggested on behalf of the prisoner If they believed Guetterrez had the wapon is his hand and attempted the life of Newman, perhaps they might be justified in finding the pri soner guilty of manslaughter, but if hislife was not in danger, if he wrested the weapon from him and then used it in the way they heldeard described, he did not think they would be justified in finding my other verdict than that wilful murder. The case was a very important one, and he was quite sure they would take all the facts intoconsideration, and whether they thought they could, in doing their duty to th public and justice, reduce the crime from murder to manslaughter.

I then applied to Captain Bolton, and he would not give me anything at all. I then, in the state of my mind-I was excited and didn'tknow what I was doing, I was sent down here from Shanghai, and then with sleepless nights and attending to Louisa—she was bad—I was perfectly beside myself. It was not my intention to kill Guttierrez. Iddn't do it wilfully.

-His Lordship-Charles Newman, you have been found guilty of the wilful murder of Serevando Cesar Guttierrez 冬 No one, I thiak, who ] has heard the evidence can doubt but that perhaps when you went into the house that night you were not aware that Guttierrez was there. But: at the sight of him, your jealousy was aroused, and, in a fit of uncontrollable passion you deliberately took that axe, and inflicted blows upon him which caused his death in the minner we heard described to-day. > POSTAL NOTIFICATION. General Post Office, Hongkong, 9th July, 1878. SIR,—An impression seems to have got abroad amongst the Mercantile Community here that correspondence from China for London when forwarded by French Packet will reach its destination more quickly if directed via Naples than if, sent viù Marseilles. I have pointed out to the senders (who have been induced to redirect their letters for the Marseilles route) that this idea is most probably mistaken. As, however, the French Post Office Agent whom I consulted could not speak positirely on the point, I have the honour to request information as to whether I am correct in supnosing that no time would be gained by sending correspondence or closed mails for London to Naples instead of to Marseilles.—I have, &c., A. LISTER, Postmaster General of Hongkong. J. Tilley, Esq., C.B., London.

General Post Office, London, 4th September. Sin.—In reply to your letter of the 9th July inst, No. 478, I bog leave to inform you that advantage would certainly be guined by sending viz Naples, instead of via Marseilles, the mails for England which you office make up for convoyance by French Packet. In the ordinary course, those mails, if landed at Naples, should reach London twelve nours sconer than if carried on by the Packet to Marseilles. Such being the case, I have to suggest that the mails in question should be addressed in future via Naples.- I am &c., EDW. H. REA.

The Postmaster-General, &c., Hongkong. POST OFFICE NOTICE. Mails for the United Kingdom, &c., by French

Under instructions from the London Post Office, the mails for the United Kingdom which have hitherto been forwarded via Marscilles, will henceforth be forwarded vin Naples, as it is understood that a gain of twelve hours results from the adoption of this route. As it would be extremely inconvenient to divide the mail and no practical advantage would result from doing so, all correspondence intended for sent via Naples, even though marked via Mar-An impression appears to prevail that correspondence for the Mediterranean stations, Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus, the Levant, Turkey, &o , oan he forwarded only by British Packet. It can be forwarded also by French Packet, and if so forwarded generally arrives a week earlier than if it had been detained for the British Mail. ALPRED LISTER, Postmaster General. Many boxes of letters are received at the Post Office not sealed, that is to say, the box is fastened with sealing wax, but there is no impression of a seal. The attention of boxholders is called to the necessity of carefully, sealing such boxes with some recognisable seal, and of sending a chitbook or receipt with them. The omission of the latter precaution leaves a doubt as to whether the contents of the box ever reached tho Post Office: the omission of the former, as to whether part of them might not have been abstracted for the sake of the Postage Stamps. COMMUNICATION WITH BATAVIA. The Netherlands India Packets leave Singapore forthightly, and are fitted to the arrival of the outward P. & O.
